Since moving to Nevada, I have advised clients in a wide range of business transactional matters, including business acquisitions, mergers, corporate governance, owner relations, business structuring, formation, equity offerings, secured transactions, leasing and other commercial arrangements. My clients ranged from sole proprietors to international public companies.

In my present capacity, I am an Associate General Counsel with Switch – the world’s leader in data center ecosystem development. As one of three in-house lawyers, I handle a wide range of issues for my client, a Nevada limited liability company, including internal governance, financing, joint ventures, development and finance matters. My primary responsibility, however, is to facilitate Switch’s growth and expansion via corporate transactions. I offer a unique in-house perspective on business law in Nevada and the role of business lawyers in Nevada that will benefit the committee and the bar.

Prior to my relocation to Nevada from Washington, DC in August 2006, I was a member of the International Trade Group at Baker & Hostetler. Represented and advised foreign companies, trade associations and foreign governments in various international civil litigation and trade matters before U.S. regulatory agencies, federal courts and international arbitration panels, including NAFTA and WTO proceedings.

During the course of my educational and professional experience, I obtained substantial expertise and insights in the areas of lawmaking and rulemaking and the relationship of law and policy. As a result, I have served regularly as a resource on state, federal and international policy matters and advised clients and colleagues on the role and impact of the lawmaking on businesses.

In addition, I have been an active member of the bar association through my involvement with the Disciplinary Committee and the Executive Committee of the Business Law Section.
