Competition Information

State champion high school mock trial teams from NHSMTC member organizations (one per U.S. state, U.S. territory or foreign country) are eligible to compete in the tournament. Students in grades 9 through 12 (ages 14-19) make up the membership. Teams at nationals are comprised of eight competing student team members plus one student timekeeper. Students work with teacher and attorney coaches to prepare to play the roles of attorneys, witnesses and timekeepers in a court case. Teams have approximately five to six weeks to prepare a new case for the national tournament. The case release date each year is April 1 and the NHSMTC is usually held the second weekend in May.

The competition is made up of four preliminary rounds in which all teams participate. Teams will play either the “P” (Prosecution or Plaintiff) or the “D” (Defense) side of the competition case in each round. Teams are guaranteed to play the P and D side at least one time during the four preliminary rounds. The first round is a random match and all subsequent preliminary round matches are made through a “power-match” scoring system. At the conclusion of the preliminary rounds, the two teams with the best records advance to the fifth round: the “National Championship” round.

During each round, a judge presides over the trial, while a panel of attorney evaluators act as the jury and score student performances. Students are scored on their analysis and presentation skills, not on the legal merits of the case.

National High School Mock Trial Championship, Inc., Support

Participating teams have the full support of the NHSMTC, Inc., during the tournament each year. Partnering with a local host committee in most years, the NHSMTC provides critical elements of the program:

Case Material—Each year a new and original case is written by the local host committee in collaboration with the NHSMTC Case Committee and released by April 1. These materials are self-contained, meaning no outside or additional research is required to prepare a case using them, and include the facts of the case, the law, witness statements, exhibits, competition and evidentiary rules and procedures, and competition forms.

Competition Rules—Reviewed annually, the NHSMTC Rules of the Competition govern team participation in the tournament and the NHSMTC Rules of Evidence, which are modified from the U.S. Federal Rules of Evidence, govern evidentiary issues that might arise during a trial round.

Competition Scheduling—Working with the local host committee to meet local facility requirements and the specific scheduling needs of participating teams, the NHSMTC provides a competition schedule that allows teams to conduct trial rounds in real-life courtrooms in a different American city each year. Teams are also provided the opportunity to conduct informal scrimmage matches against other participating teams in the days leading up to the first round of competition.

Competition Judging Panels—In conjunction with the local host committee, the NHSMTC provides orientation materials for all judging panel volunteers. Additionally, the NHSMTC supplements local volunteer recruitment efforts by encouraging out-of-state volunteers and members of the NHSMTC Board of Directors to serve on panels. It is the goal of the NHSMTC to provide teams with well-trained, enthusiastic and diverse judging panels in each courtroom each year.

Social Activities—One of the key components of a successful tournament is providing students and adult volunteers with the opportunity to interact with one another in a safe and fun social setting. Team social activities may include a pin exchange reception on Thursday evening, a Friday evening activity and/or an awards presentation on Saturday evening. For adult participants, the host committee may host a reception for judging panel volunteers or offer a hospitality suite during the evening. These activities may be big or small, but at the heart of all planning for social activities during the tournament is the desire to ensure that students and adult volunteers, alike, fully enjoy the tournament experience.

Team/Local Mock Trial Program Responsibilities

Local host committees and the NHSMTC may provide some funding for team participation in the national tournament in the form of complimentary event tickets for competing teams, complimentary tournament souvenirs for competition team members, subsidized event ticket prices for non-competing participants and access to court facilities. State Coordinators receive complimentary event tickets, as well. However, it is the responsibility of the individual team and/or state mock trial program to provide funding in the following areas:

- Team Registration Fee: $500/team, non-refundable
- NHSMTC Membership Fee (for the state mock trial program): $250, beginning with the 2012 tournament, non-refundable
- Lodging & Transportation Costs: variable depending on tournament location
- Meals: variable depending on tournament location for those meals not covered by complimentary event tickets

All teams are required to travel with adult chaperones, including the primary teacher and attorney coaches. All teams, coaches and spectators are bound by the NHSMTC Code of Ethical Conduct while on site for the tournament weekend.
