NOTE FROM THE ISSUE EDITOR

BY CHAD D. OLSEN, ESQ.

Merry Christmas and Happy Holidays from the Nevada Lawyer! Nothing spreads holiday cheer like an issue focused on family law.

Like some of you, I have little experience in family law. At times, I've even been grateful for that. However, like it or not, it is a subject that affects most of us. It affects many of us personally, and it affects almost all of us through friends, family members and colleagues. It even has an impact on us through society as a whole, because the ever-changing landscape of family law now touches on issues that are moral, religious and educational—to name just a few.

This issue highlights some of the recent developments in family law, including landmark case law and AB 263, which may be the most significant family law legislation in many years. It also provides insight into some post-Obergefell challenges, as well as some practical advice concerning guardianship and valuing a business in a divorce.

We hope you enjoy this month's Nevada Lawyer. NL

CHAD D. OLSEN is an attorney at Payne & Fears, LLP. He handles matters involving insurance coverage, employment law, business litigation and construction defects.
